While none of the three women particularly like Shalu, they keep each other company and help each other out. Sarita has two sons, Ganesh and Kabir. Ganesh is a jobless man who keeps a dog as a pet, and Kabir is a freelance carpenter. He is an alcoholic who gets very angry when someone tells him that he cannot drink. He is one of the main male characters, along with Siddharth, Raj, and Chirag, and his relationships with them influence the course of the show. The women in the house, however, are mostly hard-working and talented. Shalu is a singer, with a talent for singing multiple songs at once. She has a complicated relationship with her husband, who, along with their two sons, is on parole from prison. The women (Shalu, Nimmi, and Sarita) are quite interested in Siddharth, who is the chief architect in the city. Shalu's relationship with her father is antagonistic. In the book, she remembers her father as having once told her, "You are an old-fashioned girl, Shalu, who thinks of nothing but marriage and maternity." When his parole ends, Ganesh's father seeks revenge by attacking Ganesh. He causes a car accident that severely injures Shalu's father and sends Ganesh to prison for assault. Sarita is initially jealous of Shalu, as she feels that she is more talented than her, and that people view her as a bad influence on her own daughter. Sarita is initially more outgoing and friendly, but she starts to behave in a more quarrelsome and angry manner towards her daughters. Eventually, she loses her temper and screams at Shalu, declaring, "I have spent my life raising you to be an old maid who would never marry. I will do anything to destroy you." This causes Shalu to leave home and be unable to return for nearly a year. Shalu's father also had a previous relationship with Sarita, and this causes further tension between the two. Sarita initially dislikes her and calls her a "witch" who casts a spell on her husband. Sarita eventually starts to respect Shalu's singing ability and falls in love with her as a result. After a while, Sarita tells Shalu that she has accepted her, and asks Shalu to reciprocate. Chirag's mother feels that her son is a
